

BAD ELF

RIDGEWAY BREWING • ENGLAND

style: Hoppy Beer

abv: 6.0%

format: 30 liter key kegs / 500ml bottles

A little malt, a little hops, and lots of holiday trouble-making; this Elf is so bad, it's way good.

Olde England meets the New World in this strong, warming golden ale. A generous amount of famous English malt is masterfully balanced with an astounding 45 ounces of fresh hops – including English Cascade – per barrel. Bad Elf is brewed by Peter Scholey, master brewer for the late and much Lamented Brakspear Brewery of Henley-on-Thames, England. Peter has bought up the entire crop from the single row of Cascades grown in the U.K.

ELF WARNING: Consumption of too much of this ale may be bad for your elf and may impair your ability to drive a sleigh or operate toy-making machinery.
